

Guthrie Family Medicine Residency: Obesity Medicine Track

Obesity continues to accelerate in the US, with increasing impact on rural communities.

The Guthrie Family Medicine Residency aims to train physicians who are competent in the management of obesity, from lifestyle management, pharmacologic initiation, and perioperative assessment.

One resident per year may apply for selection to participate in The Obesity Medicine Track.

The Obesity Medicine Track features clinical experience in the Guthrie Weight Loss Center, which employs Medical Bariatricians, Bariatric Surgeons, Nutritionists, Psychologists and Exercise Physiologists.

The residency will facilitate required CME completion to allow participating residents to qualify for The Obesity Medicine certification exam at the completion of residency training.
